MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT:

Dear TIAHA Brothers,

When I look back on 2005 I say, “Whew!!!” When I look ahead to 2006 I say, “Wow!!!”

When you look back and reflect on it, 2005 was a pretty spectacular year for TIAHA. We were more than successful in all of our endeavors to raise money, no matter what the purpose, or who the final recipients of the funds were. It seems like we had some kind of affair, social event, project, gathering, of many kinds each and every month. I’d like to genuinely thank everyone who participated in any way, shape, or manner in all the good we, as an organization, accomplished this year:

Adopt-A-Highway, Red Cross Blood Drive, Crab & Fishing Trip, Friday Night Poker, Day at the Races, TIAHA Golf Tournament (I know that I, for one, will never forget that day), Camp Shalom Pizza Fest, TIAHA Family Picnic, St. Joseph’s Church Clean and Paint, Lifetime Members Recognition, Team Italy Baseball Pig Roast and Ballgames at Durham Bulls Park, Wives and Significant Others Dinner Meeting, Board Installation Dinner, St. Raphael’s Carnival, Pot Luck Dinners, Monthly President’s Awards to Members in recognition of Extraordinary Service, The International Festival, Dinner Meeting at Joe Frangiosa’s House, Kids from local High School Italian Clubs participating in events, Italian vs. Irish Softball Game, Oxford House Christmas, The Scholarship Raffle, and our very own www.theitalianclub.com web site.

Just reading that last paragraph and you know why I say, “Whew!!” We did a bunch last year and it is all reflected upon you the Brothers of TIAHA. I truly believe that every one of our active members participated in at least three or more of the events listed above and that is more than gratifying because that’s what we are all about. As it says in our membership oath, “...I will socially and charitably offer my services to the community.” Well you, the members of TIAHA, have certainly lived up to that and I am proud to be your brother, and more than proud to have served as your President this year.

And now the “Wow!!” It is my firm belief that we can excel even more in 2006. We saw a good growth in our membership and welcomed about a dozen new members this past year. I’d like to, at least, double that in 2006. I truly believe we, as members working together, can top last year’s success, and number of events, in every aspect of being a social, charitable, and fraternal organization.

It is coming to the time for you the members to select a new Board of Officers. It is time for some of you to step up and volunteer to be on the Board in a position where you can help us progress even further. We will select an election committee at this month’s meeting and will have elections in February and New Board Installation in March. This club belongs to all of us, but we will need a strong and dedicated Board to accomplish and exceed our goals. I know we can.

And above everything else I have talked about or listed in this letter. I sure had a lot of fun. Thank you from the bottom of my heart.

Fraternally yours,

Frank

A Man Gets One Wish

A man walking along a California beach was deep in prayer. All of a sudden he said out loud, "Lord, grant me one wish."

Suddenly the sky clouded above his head and in a booming voice the Lord said, "Because you have had the faith to ask, I will grant you one wish." The man said, "Build a bridge to Hawaii, so I can drive over anytime I want to."

The Lord said, "Your request is very materialistic. Think of the logistics of that kind of undertaking. The supports required to reach the bottom of the Pacific! The concrete and steel it would take! I can do it, but it is hard for me to justify your desire for worldly things. Take a little more time and think of another wish, a wish you think would honor and glorify me."

The man thought about it for a long time. Finally he said, "Lord, I have been married and divorced four times. All of my wives said that I am uncaring and insensitive. I wish that I could understand women. I want to know how they feel inside, what they are thinking when they give me the silent treatment, why they cry, what they mean when they say "nothing" and how I can make a woman truly happy?"

After a few minutes God said, "You want two lanes or four on that bridge?"

 - Immediate Family (Spouse, Child, or Parent) $50 for flowers or donation to the charity/church as requested by the family
 - For all others we will send a card
 - Upon any member finding out about such a need, he should call a Board member who shall in turn notify the rest of the Board and Good & Welfare chairman so we may take appropriate action and notify all brothers

2. We were profitable in all our fund raising and business endeavors this year. We have very positive balances in our treasury as well as all of our various "specific slush funds."
 - International Festival - We made over $1500
 - St. Raphael's- This was pure profit that went into our general treasury
 - Oxford House – We provided a great Christmas and still have a substantial amount in our treasury and slush fund at the Oxford house that we will be using throughout the year for a number of different events, etc.
 - Marino Scholarship- We have such a positive balance that the Board decided to raise this year's Scholarship award to $1,000
 - Our general Charity fund allowed us to:
 - a. buy the 7 bikes for needy family that Ron and June Little found,
 - b. Provide a very nice gift for the Gill House
 - c. And we still have money in the fund for other charitable events this year
 - Raffle- We made over $1,000 that will be split between the Scholarship and our General Charity Fund

3. Vince Conzola reported that dues collections are going very well and that we are way ahead of last year's pace.

4. We must contact and charge people who have ads in the newsletter. Vince Conzola will send invoices and will call on Bob Giannuzzi to ram rod this effort.

5. The Board approved the purchase of a small inexpensive copier that we can bring to meetings etc and will allow us to better distribute copies of important documents, etc.

6. Jan. 18th Meeting
 - Dominic Pulera is guest speaker
 - Bob V. is cooking baked ziti, salad, and sausage
 - Members will still pay for dinner but all other guests are free
 - We will have wine but will have someone to pour and collect money at $1.00 per glass
 - Vince C to contact Bob Giannuzzi re the folks at Quail Hollow book store to see if they want to bring copies of Mr. Pulera's books to sell
 - Frank F to e-mail Mr. Pulera regarding book signing, travel arrangements, directions, etc.

7. Sunday Jan. 22nd is Pot Luck dinner at 3:00. Each person to bring a $5 gift and food for six people

10. Frank to put together a 2006 Calendar

Following is a sample of what TIAHA is all about

Frank presents CD Player and Gift Certificate to Jaquan Kennedy at The Gill House

Masonic Home For Children Christmas Party

Santa (John Bono) presenting gift at Masonic Home For Children

Greetings from the North Pole, (Boy am I exhausted) we delivered 6 bicycles and one tricycle to seven kids that could not have been happier. All three of us (Randi, Ron, June (Little)) waited and waited for the guys to get up on Christmas Day and finally at about 9am we heard the YAHOO's from two doors down. I rushed out to take pictures of the kids that woke up first. Since Christmas, every afternoon when I get home they are all riding their new bikes. I'd like to take this opportunity to thank the many Santas of TIAHA for making this a special Christmas.

Serving Individual Investors Since 1871

The word pasta comes from the Italian word for paste, meaning a combination of flour and water. The term pasta has always been used on Italian restaurant menus to include all the various pasta offerings.

The Pope set quality standards for pasta in the 13th century.

There are more than 600 pasta shapes world wide.

On record, the Chinese have eaten pasta as early as 5 000 B.C.

Tripolini ("little bows") were named to honour the Italian conquest of Tripoli in Libya.

According to legend, noodles were first made by German bakers in the 13th century. They molded dough into symbolic shapes, such as stars, swords and birds, which they then baked and served as bread.

All pasta is made by essentially the same equipment using the same technology. Also, independent taste tests conducted by Consumer reports U.S. pasta was found superior to Italian imports.

According to Harry Balzer (NPD Group, Chicago), consumers enjoy pasta for dinner more than 40 times a year – approximately once a week.

According to a Wall Street Journal article, pasta is actor Leonardo diCaprio's favourite.

Pasta existed for thousands of years before anybody ever thought of putting tomatoe sauce on it. Cortez, a Spanish explorer, brought tomatoes back to Europe from Mexico in 1519. Even then, nearly 200 years passed before spaghetti served with tomatoe sauce made its way into Italian kitchens.

Speaking of spaghetti ... and meatballs: the Italians only ate meat a few times a month. So, when they came to America, where meat was plentiful, they incorporated meat into their cooking more often, making meatballs an American invention.

Southern Italian Immigration

By Nicola Colella

Can you imagine what it was like to say goodbye to your family, your home and your friends? To leave for a strange country, not knowing the language, and with little or no money? Who would do such a thing? Why would anyone do something so drastic?

The following is not "pretty story." It is however a TRUE STORY that ends well, and it needs to be told, and told again and again, lest future generations forget. It is the history of our families emigration to America....why they came and what it was like when they got here.

Going to America

Most Italian immigrants never planned to stay in the US permanently. There is even a special phrase that was coined for Italians: "Birds of Passage" since their intent was to be migratory laborers. Even though about 75% of Italian immigrants were farmers in Italy, they did not wish to farm in the US (as it implied a permanence that did not figure in their plans). Instead, they headed for cities where labor was needed and wages were relatively high. Many Italian men left their wives and children behind because they expected to return (and many, many did). In any event, for many Italian immigrants, migration could not be interpreted as a rejection of Italy. In fact, it is a defense of the Italian way of life, for the money sent home helped to preserve the traditional order. Rather than seeking permanent homes, they desired an opportunity to work for (relatively) high wages in the city and save enough money to return to a better life in Italy. Very commendable considering the difficult conditions that characterized life in southern Italy in those times. These conditions were a result of many different factors.

The History

The vast majority of immigration came from the former Independent and Sovereign State of southern Italy, the Kingdom of the Two Sicilies. It included all continental southern Italy from Abruzzi, to Calabria and Puglia, and Sicily. It was occupied in 1860, without a declaration of war, by the northern Piedmontese Kingdom ruled by the House of Savoy (Kingdom of Sardinia). A ten-year bloody civil war followed, and, as a result, about one million people, Neapolitans and Sicilians, were murdered by the Italian Army of occupation. The National Treasury of the Two Sicilies was robbed and appropriated by the invaders. Even machines from Neapolitan factories were moved to the North. Severe economic depression followed.

Although southern Italy's troubles can be attributed to exploitation by their own people, I don't believe it is fair (or historically accurate) to attribute all the suffering to northern Italians alone. In fact, for centuries in all of Italy the entire peninsula was divided into feuding states, with foreign powers often ruling one or several states. In this chaotic situation, the feudal system ruled the economic system. Specifically, the feudal system allowed hereditary land possession to determine one's political power and social status, so many poor Italians had almost no opportunity to improve their lives. But it is true, that southern Italians suffered more hardships than those in the North. The Italian government was dominated by northerners, and southerners were hurt by high taxes and high protective tariffs on northern industrial goods. Additionally, much of southern Italy's problems can be attributed to its lack of coal and iron ore which was needed by industry; extreme scarcity of cultivatable land, soil erosion, deforestation, and overpopulation. For the North, their higher level of industrialism meant less poverty and agricultural difficulties. On top of all of that, several natural disasters rocked southern Italy during the early 20th century: Mt. Vesuvius erupted burying an entire town near Naples, Mt. Etna's eruption, the 1908 earthquake and tidal wave that swept through the Strait of Messina, which killed more than 100,000 people in the city of Messina alone.

Ellis Island

I welcomed Florio Vincenzo when he came over to become one of us. He had no doubts of the future for he wooed the Goddess of Good Fortune boldly. Florio is fourteen; he came from Palermo. He traveled light. When he opened his cheap paper valise, it was apparently empty, save for a pair of discredited and disreputable old shoes. Florio bowed, cap in hand, and his white teeth flashed as he smiled suavely:

There was an odor that an old inspector knew. He picked up one of the shoes and extracted from it, after some manipulation, a creased and crumpled hunk of Bologna sausage. The other shoe was stuffed with a soft, sticky and aggressively fragrant mass of Italian cheese. These articles and a sum of Italian money equivalent to about $1.80, and the clothes he stood in, formed the basis on which Florio expected to rear his fortune.

Pietro Viarilli was gray-haired, round-shouldered, and weazened. He, too, had come make his fortune. His impedimenta consisted of one padlocked canvas valise lined with paper and containing two striped cotton shirts, one neckerchief of yellow silk blue flowers and edges, one black hat (soiled and worn), one waistcoat, two pairs of woolen hose of gay design, one suit of underwear, one pint of olive oil and about half a peck of hard bread biscuits. Until his arrival the list included a quart of Vesuvian wine of the rich purple hue one may buy in cheap cafes in Naples. Carelessly Pietro had slung his valise from his shoulder, and had smashed his bottle, drenching his store of biscuits. He and his companions had munched them greedily until the supply was exhausted.

Money Brought by the Immigrants

At the examination the immigrants are asked to show their money. Some craftily fail to show it all; others willingly display their whole petty hoardings. The money is carefully counted, and, after a record has been taken, restored to them. Later, they are asked if they wish any money changed. Many refuse for fear of being cheated; others stop before the busy money-changers' booth at the end of the long examination room.

Last year the 388,931 immigrants showed $5,490,080, an average of $14.12 The French led all the others with an average of $39.37. The Hebrews stood at the foot of the list bringing on an average $8.58. The Germans followed the French with an average of $31.14. The other nationalities stood in the list as follows:

Race Average per Capita

Italians(Northern)	$23.53
Bohemian and Moravian	$22.78
Scandinavian	$18.16
Irish	$17.10
Armenian	$15.75
Croatian and Dalmation	$15.54
Greek	$15.10
Slovak	$12.31
Magyar	$10.96
Italian(Southern)	$8.67

Roughly speaking, the North-of-Europe people make better citizens than those from the South of Europe. The better class go to the country and the worst to the cities. Greeks are considered about the least desirable of all; the Italians from the southern portion of the peninsula also make poor citizens; but those from the northern part of Italy rank with the Swiss and other desirable nationalities.

At Work

In an open ditch, red and raw under a broiling sun, sixty-five Italian immigrants, stripped to the necessities, toiled silently with shovel and pick. A hard-faced, red-necked man, their taskmaster, walked up and down the trench, and wherever he stopped the men worked with feverish speed. Temporarily, at least, this will be the fate of thousands of the other immigrants who flowed in through Ellis Island in this year's spring flood, the greatest in twenty years.

These Greeks and the Southern Italians, however, who live by selling fruit from the push carts in the city streets, earn considerable sums of money. An old Italian was detained at Ellis Island, preparatory to being deported because he had arrived here penniless. He sent for his son, a push-cart man, who had been in this country just one year. The boy (he was not more than twenty) brought his book showing deposits aggregating $250. This money represented the sum he had saved. He impressed upon the inspectors his ability to support his father, and the old man was admitted. The boy said his expenses were about $7.00 a week, and that he did not work for a padrone, but was an independent merchant. (End of text from "The World's Work" written in 1902)

Life In A New World

And so... to America we came, hundreds upon hundreds of thousands until we were more than four million. We faced overwhelming prejudice, poverty and the isolation of being in a strange and unfriendly country. The majority came to the US when they were very young with high hopes for a better future for themselves and their families. They found that not only were the streets not paved with gold but that they were expected to pave them. We soon discovered that we were here to do the dirty work that nobody else wanted to do. We came to a place that considered us and treated us as less than equal. (Read the comments written above.) We were regarded as low class, stupid and inferior.

We had to learn how to hide our foreignness. We had to learn how to fit in and to adapt and so we did. However, we still held our heads high and we were still proud of where we came from and of who we were. The mainstream of society tried to humbled us, but we refused to believe that they were better than us and we refused to be treated as inferior. We learned to speak English, we found jobs, we started our own businesses. We joined unions and we even formed our own unions. We bought our own homes and we succeeded in spite of the prejudice, discrimination, and less than friendly welcome we received in the US.

We stuck together and even managed to preserve the Italian way of life back in Italy by sending home a great deal of money. In the US, Italians mobilized to preserve their culture. In Italian neighborhoods, Italian shops and other businesses sprung up. Italians made it a habit to buy from other Italians. We kept the money in the community and we prospered. I remember my father would never buy from a 'mericano' (American) if he could by it from an Italian. Italian-American newspapers were published in major cities, immigrant-aid and fraternal societies were formed --i.e., Sons of Italy etc. All of this greatly helped the continuously arriving immigrants who in addition to the strong Italian work ethic, brought dance, music and food! In fact, Italian food is now a staple of the American diet.
